Teaching kids to be good citizens reaching their communities, to strive to be productive adults after graduation are over-all goals of the Youth Crime watch organization. Combining the efforts of the teenagers, police officers, teachers, principals, school custodians and parental involvement helps the teens become and stay motivated. When students see privileges such as night football games reinstated because school crime was reduced, makes them more willing to be part of solutions to youth crime instead of causing the problem. Viewers were told how to start a Youth Crime watch program in their schools.

	Harold Ray, attorney, Rev. Michael Lewandowski, Pastor and Director of Lamb of God Fellowship Center, David Rhodes, Executive Director, Comprehensive Counseling on Abuse and Brenda Dillon, Resource Specialist, Prevention Programs, all discussed how viewers could recognize drug and alcohol abuse problems and what people could do to help. They explained that turning to drugs usually occurs in someone that has a void of good nurturing in early childhood and a great emotional need that is impossible to fill. Rhodes said that the first things parents and teachers recognize in children or youth who are on drugs is a personality change, change in taste in music, friends and clothes and physical symptoms, such as unexplained pains and aches, red eyes and weight loss. Lewandowski explained that the community must get involved in helping to stop the media from influencing children that alcohol is okay and an adult to imitate. Dillon cautioned that children will do what they see parents do and Rhodes said that after looking at signs and symptoms of abuse intervention is needed. Intervention methods were presented from parental communication to family counseling were ways presented of intervention. Several drug and alcohol abuse prevention P.S.A.'s were shown during the course of the program and viewers were strongly challenged to join the fight against drug and alcohol abuse. 	Pastor Harold and Brenda Ray hosted an interview with Lynda Bell of P.O.P.S., Parents Opposing Propaganda in Schools and Attorney John (John) Thompson. Bell and Thompson discussed the "Link Line" which is a series of tapes and is a school program sponsored by United Way, HRS and Channel 10. The tapes contain subjects on sex, drugs, homosexuality, etc. The tapes tell teens it is alright to have sex out of marriage, homosexuality is normal and encourages teens to engage in alternate sexual experiences, which they will discover their true sexual identity. That drugs is okay as long as they do not mix it with alcohol and that marijuana is neither legal or illegal. These tapes are in violation of "The Drug Free Act" and "Florida Law Against The Sex Act". Bell told viewers that parents are trying to un-do the damage these tapes have done to their children. Parents were encouraged to get involved and let the School System and United Way that they are against the "Link Line".

	Attorney, Harold Ray, introduced John Thompson, Attorney at Law and J.T. Johnson of the Christian Coalition. They presented an expose on a school program called "The Link Line". The Link Line consists of 71 tapes produced by the University of Wisconsin and deals with homosexuality under the guise of an anti-drug program. Homosexuality is presented as something with which to experiment one's sexuality and that it is normal from birth for some people. Encouraged teenagers to try homosexuality to find out if is normal for them, the tapes validity pre-marital sexual exploration. Because public tax monies were used to produce and promote the course of "study" as a anti-drug program, the audience was urged to voice their views to school systems across the nation. The tapes also encourages teens to think of their parents as enemies trying to suppress their sexual maturation. A warning letter was sent to the state of Florida by Parents Opposing Propaganda in Schools, giving 20 days to prove the tapes are an anti-drug presentation. Viewers were warned to be aware if this propagandized program was initiated into their children's school and to boycott United Way that funds the project.

Also contained within the "Link Line" presentation are situations which cause the child to believe his parents are enemies seeking to prevent their maturity. A discussion followed regarding United Way's decision to not fund the California Boy Scouts because they won a Federal Court case not allowing homosexuals in the Boy Scouts and their demanding a Gay Boy Scouts division be established. Primarily an anti-drug family, anti-parental authority, pro-homosexual program. the "Link Line tapes are manipulated according to "what the audience will stand". Viewers were told to express their views about "Link Line" to United Way and their individual school system.

Education/ Schools Cont'	Another school program called "Yes" is being investigated. "Yes" is used as an anti-drug program but in actuality it promotes the homosexual lifestyle. Presented as a positive role-model for gay teens the game was being used for all students. School systems throughout America are using methods of testing, counseling and programs presented as anti-drug programs, self-esteem programs and educational reinforcement that are actually promoting something else. Viewers were told to become vitally involved in the educational process of their children.

	Harold Calvin Ray interviewed panelist Steve Michelson of the Florida Food Recovery Project and Christine Hildner of the Miami Coalition for the Homeless. A roll-in about the problem of the homeless and problems experienced by the homeless was presented. Factors such as medical bills, job loss, divorce and mental illness were given as contributing to the homeless situation. The problem of homeless families and single women with children without homes were discussed in relation to family violence, causing family break-up and a homeless situation. The amount of food thrown away in most large cities was equated to the amount of food that it would take to feed that city's homeless population. Ways communities could help obtaining food destined to be wasted were presented and viewers were challenged to make a difference in their communities and help start programs that will offer solutions to the homeless problem in America.
